Hiking the Dolomites Chestnut Route - Italy

Hiking the Dolomites Chestnut Route

8 days, price from € 953

Among centuries-old chestnut groves, deciduous woodlands, and very green meadows in the heart of South Tyrol, in Alto Adige, lies the ancient Via Romea Germanica path: this path in the shadow of the Dolomites offers endless views of peaks and valleys, castles and abbeys, farms that offer zero-kilometer products - great to snack on! - Vineyards that preserve the genesis of some of the best Italian wines.

There are also enchanted villages like Chiusa, home to poets and artists, and larger and more renowned cities, such as Bolzano, the gateway to the Dolomites, with a lively center and market stalls that tickle your imagination and appetite with pancakes, homemade desserts, and frankfurters and beer, perfect for a refreshing break after a long journey.

The perfect route if you love the mountains, but are traveling with the family, or want to enjoy a less demanding itinerary in the Dolomites.

Route

Day 1 Arrive in Bressanone

Your travel starts from Bressanone, a colorful, lively city and the oldest of the whole Tyrol: if you arrive early, take the chance to stroll through its colorful alleys and visit the frescoed rooms of the bishops' palace.

Day 2 Bus to Novacella Abbey and walk to Velturmo, 10-15 km

A morning transfer takes you to the Augustinian monastery of Novacella, also well known for the delicious white wine produced here. From here you follow dirt tracks and countryside paths among woods and vineyards to reach Velturmo: this town surrounded by chestnut trees boasts such a great climate that it was chosen as a summer residence by several noble families throughout the centuries.

Distance: 10-15 km

Elevation gain: +720/-471 m

Day 3 From Velturmo to Barbiano, 14-16 km

Today's nice walk packs in more than a few surprises: the Sabiona Monastery, spiritual heart of the Tyrol area, perched on the top of a steep cliff; Chiusa, home to artists and poets, among the most beautiful Italian hamlets; and finally Barbiano, a nice village located on the banks of River Isarco.

Distance: 14-19 km

Elevation gain: +778/-798 m

Day 4 From Barbiano to Collalbo, 10-15 km

Today's walk takes you to Collalbo through woods and orchards: this village located on the Renon plateau is a wellknown ski centre and a real heaven for nature lovers. A brief detour along the way allows you to see a rock with prehistoric signs.

Distance: 10-15 km

Elevation gain: +713/-403 m

Day 5 Collalbo loop via Kematen and earth pyramids, 11 km

This easy, panoramic walk along the Renon plateau runs through forests and the typical Alpine meadows: on your way you skirt the nice Kematen lake and the typical earth pyramids, cone shaped formations created by moraine silt that was brought here by melting Ice Age glaciers. At the end of the walk you take the Renon train and go back to Collalbo through beautiful views on the surrounding mountains.

Distance: 11 km

Elevation gain: +400/-366 m

Day 6 Walk from Collalbo to Castel Roncolo and bus to Bolzano, 16-18 km

Today's hike is easy but not particularly difficult: from Collalbo you head to Castel Roncolo through orchards, forests and cultivated fields, in a countryside dotted with castles, manor houses and farms. At the end of the excursion you take a bus to Bolzano (you should start walking before 8am to avoid missing the last bus, but you can also walk the whole way to the city): this lively town perfectly unites Italian and Austian cultures, and boasts many artistic beauties.

Distance: 16-18 km

Elevation gain: +591/-1396 m

Day 7 Alp of Siusi loop, 13 km

After a bus ride from Bolzano to Siusi, you take a cable car to the Compatsch: here starts this easy circular walk along the biggest Alpine plateau in Europe. The itinerary passes through mountain huts and small hamlets, offering beautiful views on the Dolomties jagged peaks. The walk leads you back to Compatsch, from where a ride in cable car and bus takes you back to Bolzano.

Distance: 13 km

Elevation gain: +461/-502 m

Day 8 Departure from Bolzano

Our services end after breakfast.
